

----- Forwarded Message -----

Subject:Re: Follow up

Date:Wed, 27 Apr 2016 14:55:07 +0000 (UTC)

From:John Williams <willijp1@yahoo.com>

Reply-To:John Williams <willijp1@yahoo.com>

To:Bob <robertotto25@gmail.com>

You may be right about the Browder PR machine; lots of e-mails going around on this stuff...Nate has quickly gotten on top of the issue.

Chayka certainly qualifies in the category of "incoherent jerks."

On Wednesday, April 27, 2016 9:25 AM, Bob <robertotto25@gmail.com> wrote:

I sent Nate the slides I sent you.

I apologize for the sloppy note yesterday. What I meant was that I wasn't following the Magnitskiy case in late 2007 thru his death in November 2009. So I have no recollection of what was said in public at that time. Rather, I read all the stuff made public after Magnitskiy's murder. That will teach me to write while drinking beer.

I reread the June testimony this morning. It triggered a memory. besides my note on the meeting with Browder, I also wrote up a note on the different case numbers assigned to the issues involved that included some thoughts on that June document. It all goes to when exactly the Browder crew knew about the theft of the funds. There's a reference in that document to a certain Phillip Alekseyevich, just a 1st name and patronymic, no last name. He worked at tax authority 28. Magnitskiy never does this with anyone else; it sticks out like a sore thumb. I always wondered whether this was some type of signal to the investigators that he knew precisely what was up. But it's only speculation.

Meanwhile, I am beginning to feel we are all just a part of the Browder PR machine. When I wrote the note on the meeting with him, I ended with The Untouchables. Here I will just quote from the Man Who Shot Liberty Valence: when the legend becomes fact, print the legend.

On a much happier note, speaking of incoherent jerks, try this:

<http://www.newsru.com/russia/27apr2016/4aikapanam.html>

Or this