Dear Mr. Lach:

I am sending my request to speak to you about the William Browder story.

I attempted to reach your office by phone, but was diverted to a "customer line." I left the message that I had called not to make a comment but to get one from you!

Dear Mr. Lach,

I am a journalist writing an article about how NBC in May 2018 killed a report by our Washington investigative reporter Ben Delavan that would have shown William Browder's corrupt Magnitsky story to be a scam. The story was killed after Browder's lawyer threatened such in a letter dated April 27, 2018, which was sent a to you and several others at NBC.

As you know, Browder's story was used in his campaign for the Magnitsky Act which has played a role in ending relations between the U.S. and Russia.

I would like to talk to you about why NBC killed the story.
