

WTO help from a whistleblower, Larry Benton follows the money trail through the offshore operations of the world's biggest bank

Confessions of a banker

By CHRISTOPHER HUGHES and ANDREW HARRIS

It is a story that has been told in many ways. In the past, it has been a tale of corporate greed and power. In the present, it is a story of a man who has spent his life in the shadows of the financial world, a man who has seen the inside of the most powerful banks in the world. His name is Larry Benton, and he is a whistleblower. He has spent the last few years of his life exposing the offshore operations of the world's biggest bank, Citigroup. He has written a book, "Confessions of a Banker," which details his experiences and the secrets he has uncovered. Benton's story is a cautionary tale for the financial industry, and a warning to the public. It is a story that should be read by everyone who is interested in the world of finance.
