

I sent the story to Steven Brill, founder of NewsGuard which is a self-described “disinformation” operation that in fact works to prevent major media from running stories the Deep State doesn’t like. If you send him a story, does he detail what not true, does he look at and refute documents? Of course not. Here is his answer to the Browder/Magnitsky hoax I sent him. Please file Brill and NewsGuard under “disinformation.”

Steven-

By remarkable coincidence, when I got home from the Council party, I discovered via a colleague’s email that the subject of my investigations, William Browder, is testifying to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee this Thursday Dec 5th. Chair is Sen. Ben Cardin, a Browder acolyte who introduced his Magnitsky Act.

I have sent a number of editors the text below and the attached docs, my story and my 2020 query to Cardin.

I also attach for you a document “evidence.....” which links to my key past articles on Browder. I have done many more and appeared on numerous alternative media video and audio podcasts.

Mainstream media continues to report the lies, including MSNBC in spite of the fact that their reporter Ken Dilanian attempted to report the truth, which was spiked.

BTW, Browder has never sent me a lawyer’s letter to desist from my stories and broadcasts calling him a conman and a fraud. I would love to be in a courtroom with him. There are several on-going defamation cases against him, both strong. Maybe even the corporate media might have to take notice.
